

Dulwich Community Wardens Update 24 January 2011

Update on activities in College ward:

Dulwich wardens have been focusing some of their patrols on the Croxted Road Estate, this is due to complaints about young people causing anti social behaviour. Whilst patrolling the estate on the 23rd December wardens could smell burning in one of the blocks on Glazebrook, wardens knocked but there was no reply and decided to call for the fire brigade and evacuate the other flats in the block.

The fire brigade arrived quickly, gained entry through a window and put out the fire. The residents were then able to return to their homes. The wardens remained outside the open property until it was secured.

Community Wardens have spoken to young people from the Croxted Road Estate, asking them to be more aware of the residents of the estate and moving them on when they are causing a nuisance. A number of residents have confirmed it has been quieter over the Christmas period. Wardens will continue to have later shift cover for three weeks so the patrols in the area can continue.

Dulwich wardens conducted weapons sweeps on the Kingswood Estate in November removing any dangerous items found and have continued to patrol around Kingsdale at the end of the school day. Wardens regularly patrol the Lordship Lane Estate which is part of the core patrol area and often attend the coffee afternoons on a Wednesday to speak to the residents about any issues on the estate.
