FOREWORD – COUNCILLOR EVELYN AKOTO, CABINET MEMBER FOR COMMUNITY SAFETY AND PUBLIC HEALTH

Tackling serious youth violence is an on-going focus and a key priority for this administration. This is a social emergency and it is crucial to stop the flow of young people becoming perpetrators and/or victims of serious youth violence. Although we have a number of effective existing initiatives in place to support our young people, we continue to challenge ourselves to find new ways of tackling this epidemic, and reduce the impact it has on our young people, families and communities.

I have always been clear that it will take everyone to play their part in preventing and reducing violence; it is a societal issue as opposed to the responsibility of a single agency or group of agencies. We know that ‘county lines’ and the changing drug market are contributing to the rise in serious violence. Criminals are changing the way they operate and becoming more innovative. We therefore have to be equally innovative and adjust our approaches to protecting and preventing children from being exploited, communities being blighted and young lives being destroyed.

The Public Health approach is centred on working collaboratively across organisations, using information and intelligence on violence and its causes to inform action, and put in place evidence-based interventions over several years. On a daily basis it means working with families and young people to remove the issues in their lives that may make them at risk of being victims or perpetrators of violence. It focusses on the immediate crisis and how we can work collaboratively to prevent the next generation of young people from being affected.

I am determined to work alongside young people, the community and the third sector to tackle the long-term social issues that result in serious youth violence.

I have an aspiration that no young person in our borough will live in fear of their lives in their community and neighbourhood. This level of violence can hinder our young people from achieving their goals and aspirations, and creates a cycle of violence that produces new harm in future years. We all have a responsibility to do more to stop this, and change how we work to safeguard our young people from violence. I’m committed to this task and will use all the tools at my disposal to do so.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That the Cabinet notes the overview of serious youth violence in Southwark.

2. That the Cabinet accepts the recommendations of the joint strategic needs assessment (JSNA) and adopts the framework proposed herein for a public health approach to youth violence prevention in Southwark.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

Local context

3. Serious youth violence (SYV) is a particularly pertinent issue in Southwark. Southwark has the fourth highest volume of knife crime among all London boroughs and recognised gang activity, including county lines drug supply.
4. SYV is a complex and multi-factorial manifestation of wider issues, and exposure to violence has significant negative impacts on a young person's mental wellbeing and physical health. Beyond the individual affected, SYV carries a high cost to health and social care, education, communities, police, and the criminal justice system. Young people involved in / at-risk of becoming involved in violence are – principally - vulnerable. In looking to support and safeguard these young people, their wider relationships and environment must be considered. There is clear evidence that the places in which young people live and grow have an important role in determining their risk and vulnerability. Risk for becoming involved in violence also has a strong inequalities gradient, with the most disadvantaged being the most likely to be at risk.
5. The public health approach to any issue relies on a thorough understanding of the data and epidemiology. The public health approach is both upstream (looking at the root causes) and at-scale (looking at the population, rather than the individual). It supports a multi-faceted response that considers underlying risk factors ranging from the characteristics and experiences of the individual, the relationships they have, to the community and society in which they live. The range of factors that affect the likelihood of becoming involved in violence mean that tackling SYV requires a collaborative partnership responsive inclusive of the wider determinants of health. Efforts to prevent SYV should include a range of universal, targeted, and specialist interventions which seek to (1) prevent the development of risk factors, (2) prevent initial involvement in violence, and (3) mitigate the impact of violence and prevent reoccurrence.
6. This JSNA was undertaken to develop our understanding of the determinants of SYV and the epidemiology of violence locally, and to identify opportunities for prevention and improved collaborative working. While recognising the substantial overlap between youth violence and wider vulnerability and exploitation, the scope of the JSNA was limited to SYV, which was herein defined as all incidents of violence against the person involving young people aged 10-24 years. Data were analysed from the Metropolitan Police Service (Met), health, and the Southwark Youth Offending Service (YOS) to develop a picture of the burden of SYV locally. This JSNA is intended to compliment the extensive engagement undertaken as part of both the Cross-Party Youth Violence Panel and the Southwark Extended Learning Review, both of which published recommendations for a local response in early 2019.

Key Findings

7. Southwark has a large population of young people aged 10-24 years. Our adolescents are more deprived and more diverse than the general Southwark population. These characteristics need to be considered when looking at risk of involvement in violence and when looking to implement preventative interventions. Deprivation in particular tends to cluster with other risk factors for violence, such as adverse childhood experiences. Furthermore, living in a deprived area can also mean that developing and fostering protective factors to overcome adversity can be more challenging.

8. Data from the Metropolitan Police Service, health, and Youth Offending Service suggest that SYV in Southwark increasingly involves a sharp object and that the age profile of those involved is getting younger.
  - Southwark has the third highest number of stop & searches among London local authorities. Stop & searches disproportionately affect young people, males, and those of minority ethnic groups. In 14-20% of instances of stop & searches of Southwark young people, further action is taken. Violence against the person (VAP) is the most common offence committed by young offenders in Southwark. Incidents of VAP involving Southwark Young People (YP) have decreased over the past three years but use of an offensive weapon has increased dramatically.
  - There have been no major fluctuations in the overall number of London Ambulance Service (LAS) call-outs to young victims of assault over the last three years. However, the age profile of victims is increasingly younger. Emergency admissions for assault with a sharp object have not reduced in line with assaults overall and are over 5x higher in young people than in those aged over 25 years.
  - Despite high levels of first-time entrants to the youth justice system, Southwark has a low rate of offending and re-offending compared to other London local authorities. Young people involved in the criminal justice system tend to be young males of BAME ethnicity.
9. The JSNA focused on risk factors for violence most commonly identified among Southwark youth offenders. They include:
  - Adverse childhood experiences: local estimates of adverse childhood experiences (ACE) suggest there are more children with > 4 ACEs in Southwark than the national average; prevalence is especially high among young offenders
  - Being a looked-after child, child in need, or subject to a child protection plan: the rate of entry into care as a looked-after child is substantially greater in Southwark than in London or England
  - Having a special educational need or disability: a higher percentage Southwark children are identified as having a special educational need or disability than in London or England
  - Being excluded or having attendance issues at school: Southwark has a higher rate of primary school fixed-period exclusion, secondary school fixed-period exclusion, and secondary school permanent exclusion than the London average
  - Mental and/or physical health concerns: around half of Southwark young offenders had a mental health concern and there was substantial overlap between poor mental health, substance use, and poor physical health.
